And... We Have a Runoff!

Out of 24 names, we come down to two.

No name in the ILS Migration Project Name Contest reached an outright majority. After 10 rounds of vote tallying, two names remain as the final contenders.

ILS Migration Project

A name that is, in the word of the person who submitted this entry, "simple and straightforward." It will standardize how we talk about the project without being "cute or clever." You'll never have to explain this name to a new staff member or fellow librarian.

Monarch

A name referencing the monarch butterfly, which is known for its incredible summer and autumn migrations. Traveling together in clusters, half a million monarchs fly, glide, and struggle thousands of miles to arrive at a new home that will enable them to thrive.

Which will it be? You get to choose. Voting is now open.

VOTE HERE

Voting closes March 9th at 5 p.m. Winner will be announced the next day.